connected to consumer protection this important aspect of European law is also covered as part of this lecture series.

2 International Criminal Law The quest for global justice: do international treaties and courts effectively proscribe and deter international crime?

Issues of international law and international justice are at the forefront of public debates to a greater degree than ever before. International law provides the intellectual and the technical underpinnings to large areas of international cooperation, including the:

- Prosecution of war crimes (both internationally and nationally);
- Legality of the use of force against States (e.g. Libya and Iraq);
- Scope of human rights protection (e.g. the 'war on terrorism');
- International crimes and international criminal tribunal.

3 International Arbitration & Legal (and SOCIO LEGAL) Theory

The course aims to cover the study of international commercial arbitration within its international and national legal frameworks. The importance of international arbitration has increased dramatically making the area one of the most fascinating contemporary developments in the law. In a world of growing global trade and commerce arbitration has become the preferred mechanism for resolving disputes in cross border commercial transactions. As global commercial activities have expanded they also have become more complex. Scholars working in the field, arbitrators and courts have created highly sophisticated solutions that respond to the complexities and challenges of global commerce. The growing practical importance of arbitration has in information). UK tax law is used to explain basic tax principles and concepts generally relevant to national tax systems. Whilst using the examples of UK tax provisions as a starting point, this course covers a wide variety of domestic, international and EU related tax issues.

9. Medical Law and Ethics

Personal Injury

Clinical Negligence

The purpose of the course is to give an introduction to the law in England and Wales on a number of important topics in medical law including consent, negligence, reproductive medicine and end of life decision making. It will also consider the ethical issues raised by each of these areas, and evaluate whether the law currently takes the right approach to them, or whether the law ought to be reformed. In doing so, it will discuss a number of current controversies in medical law, including whether we ought to allow parents to 'design' their babies; whether we should ever compensate parents for the birth of an unwanted, but healthy child; and whether we should legalise assisted suicide?

The course will be taught through a series of four seminars. In each seminar, the lecturer will begin by setting out the legal position and the ethical issues which the topic raises, before moving to a group discussion. Students will be expected to contribute to this discussion, and put forward their own ideas on the subject.

10. English Contract Law

The first two seminars offer an introduction to the common law, and will consider
